Author Bio.

I write as RM Howe, a combination of my mother's name and mine. She was a well published author from the 1950's to the 1980's. I am neither new nor established as an author, being somewhere in the middle with three published books – and one about to be, in a series of adventure books called Azalea and I. They feature different glamorous foreign back grounds, travel, murder, mayhem, cute animals, feisty very charachterful heroines and with much humour to lighten even serious episodes, while not distracting from the events.

My aunt and father also wrote successfully so I have taken up the family trait adding my extensive travels and knowledge to the books. I write what I like to read which is 'cozy adventure with murder' and in an age of uncertainty, all ends happily. I live in the beautiful English Lake District with my dogs.
